CATALOGUE 2026

Welcome to the event horizon. Now there's no going back. We are past the past and future. For a moment, you will feel timeless. And this moment is forever.

Every object here was designed at a threshold — the point at which physics stops explaining and wonder takes over. Swartzchild was not built to furnish a room. It was built to mark the place where a room stops being ordinary.

THE FOUNDERS

Krish Wadhwana, Co-Founder

Krish asks the question before anyone touches a material. What is permanence? What survives being looked at for a hundred years? He carries the philosophy that gives Swartzchild its language — the belief that an object of true value should unsettle its owner slightly, the way a night sky does. It is Krish who insists that every piece open with a question rather than a description, and who holds the collection to a single standard: does this still mean something in silence?

Pavel Roy, Co-Founder

Pavel gives the question a shape. Where Krish asks what remains, Pavel decides what it looks like, what it weighs, how it catches light at seven in the evening. Every curve, finish, and concealed mechanism in this collection passes through his hand before it reaches a collector's home. He works from the conviction that the most honest design disappears — that the best-engineered object should feel inevitable, not clever.

Together, they do not build furniture. They build the moment before you notice it's furniture at all.
